

World Day for Safety and Health at Work

Conference “Through collaboration to the culture of occupational safety and health”

28.04.2022

Safety at Work Association of Montenegro (SWAM) organized the conference on the occasion of marking the World Day for Safety and Health at Work with the aim to remind of all those who lost their lives in previous year by working for living.

In order to achieve positive results in this activity of public interest, which are reflected in raising awareness, reducing the number of injuries, occupational diseases and work-related injuries - joint action and involvement of all contributors is necessary.

Since everyone contributes to the achievement of the stated goals, the participants of the conference were authorities, employers, employees, authorized organizations for performing work in the field of OSH and scientific research institutions, court experts, the judiciary, the prosecution and civil society organizations. Having in mind the fact that OSH has a positive effect on employee motivation, work productivity, competitiveness and business success of employers, as well as the overall economic and social development of each country, this requires open communication and dialogue built on trust and mutual respect of all participants in this process, which was the message of this gathering.

These are people who presented their own role in very complex chain of OSH:

1. Djina Jankovic, Safety at Work Association of Montenegro, The year behind us - activities of the SWAM that marked previous period, strategic goals of the development of OSH in the region
